Glendale Police Arrest Med Student for Threatening Classmates

GLENDALE, AZ. – Glendale Police arrested 29-year-old Mona Asadi (Glendale resident) for four felony offenses of computer tampering by using a computer in a course of conduct that threatened, terrorized, and/or tormented specific individuals.

On April 21, 2021, the dean of a university contacted police and reported that medical student, Mona Asadi, had threatened to bomb the campus. On June 9, 2021 a mass email was sent out to hundreds of students naming specific victims that the author wanted to kill. Several more emails were sent in group messages threatening death and involving the families of the students.

Asadi was arrested by detectives on June 16, 2021. She was linked to email addresses, social media accounts and electronic devices that were involved in the threatening messages sent to the victims. Four specific victims were identified during the investigation. The FBI Phoenix Field Office assisted with this investigation.
